Mission Statement

We, the community of St. James, are a prayerful and Eucharistic people who treasure our Catholic traditions. We strive to grow in our faith by being good stewards of the gifts God has given us; sharing God's truth with all. As the Body of Christ, we are called to love and serve everyone, especially the marginalized, with joy and hospitality.

LEDs

Do You Know?

Brightergy began the St. James conversions to LEDs on Monday, August 3.

They started in the school classrooms, will work to the halls, and then to the Social Hall. Finally they will do the gym and Church, as the work in those areas will require the use of a lift device.

My friends, I have seen the first few classrooms and the improvement is very special, far beyond what I expected. We will complete the work prior to the start of school.

Jim Newell, Operations Manager

From the Pastor's Pen

We, the Missionaries of the Precious Blood, an international community of priests, brothers, and lay associates today celebrate the 200th anniversary of the founding of our community and the 50th anniversary of the Kansas City Province. We thank all of you for joining us in prayer and celebration today as we celebrate this great milestone.

For the past three years our community has been on a journey leading up to today. In 2012, we began by remembering and celebrating our history. In 2013, we focused on our charism of reconciliation and this past year we have focused on our mission of responding to the cry of the Blood in the world. Our theme has been, "The Dream Continues." It was our founder's dream and famous saying, "I wish I had a thousand tongues to proclaim the merits of the most Precious Blood." As sons of St. Gaspar, we continue to live the dream today as we continue to minister throughout the world.

I grew up in a Precious Blood parish in WaKeeney, KS. I had the privilege to meet and get to know many of the members, as they would travel to western Kansas for various community gatherings. We were blessed to host not only my ordination but also the ordination of one other member. Although growing up I never fully understood the difference between a religious community priest and a diocesan priest. I never questioned where I felt called to serve once I began to discern my own journey to religious life. It is truly within the community that I have found a place to call home and to serve with others in responding to the cry of the blood. Never did I ever dream as young boy where my life and saying yes to God and to the community would lead me.

I still recall the first time meeting Fr. Joe Nassal, who was at that time the Vocation Director. It was a Friday after school and my grandmother had asked me to go visit my great aunt in the hospital to cheer her up. She said, "Oh by the way, wear your clown costume." So I did and that's how I was dressed when Fr. Joe first met me. It was years later that I learned the community story of how all the "clowns and characters" got sent out to Kansas City and California prior to the split in the 1965. As Fr. Joe said later after my ordination as he recalled our first meeting, "I knew he was one of us." Yes, we have our "clowns and characters" but that's what makes us who we are in sharing and serving the church. The clown sees the world in a different way and brings to light a message of hope, renewal, and life. We as Missionaries of the Precious Blood preach the word of God in a way that brings to life a message of hope and reconciliation through the Precious Blood of Jesus. Thank you for joining us in our celebration and may we continue to serve the church and continue to invite others to join us as priests, brothers, and lay associates to Continue to Live the Dream.

Fr. Timothy Armbruster, C.P.P.S.

Someone is Watching and Wondering

Recently I returned from a week full of wonder and awe. With two of my grandchildren I journeyed to the mountains of Colorado. Once again I was overwhelmed by the beauty and perfection of our natural world, where I always feel so very close to God. High up in the mountains, in the empty expanses of wide open country, sitting beside a rushing stream or a tranquil lake, or hiking through the forests I feel surrounded by His love. This time, however, I wondered if I was actually having a spiritual, or simply human experience. Let me explain.

According to Webster, spiritual refers to anything relating to or concerned with the soul-spirit or the sacred, and spirituality is an attachment to all that concerns the life of the soul. Indeed it is the quality of being spiritual. My experience of nature, therefore, seems simple and straight forward. Believing as I do that God created the entire universe, and perhaps beyond, then all of creation is sacred, and any true encounter with our natural world, although it involves all my human senses, is indeed a spiritual experience. I must admit, I find great peace and joy when I take the time to sit quietly, away from the business of everyday life, surrounded by trees, flowers, animals, all of nature's beauty, and simply let myself be in God's presence experiencing His love.

My difficulty, or lack of understanding, however, surrounds my personhood, my life. Sometimes I am overwhelmed thinking about my life journey with its peaks and valleys, twists and turns, and the great unknowns of each day. Yes, I often ask myself, "Is my life and the journey I'm on sacred? Where is God in my story? Why don't I feel the same peace and joy within myself, in the quietness at the end of the day? Why does His presence evade me?" There are times when my mind screams, "Father, where are you?" I hate to admit this so publicly, and I am not equating myself with St. John of the Cross, but for me these times are the "Dark Night of my Soul." I struggle, I fight an inner battle, I even cry, yet miraculously the light always returns. At times it is music, words on a page, or yes, even something on television, but I feel rescued. I feel hope. I feel the strength to go on, continue the journey, and know the truth that God is near and I can trust Him. I will know His love, His forgiveness, His guidance once again. I don't need to put on a happy face, rather I need to surrender myself to His care. I have to let go of my need to control every aspect of life, and truly let Him dwell in me. It's a big order, but I need to realize that I am as much a part of God's creation as is the rest of the universe. I need to recognize that all human life is truly sacred and loved by God. I need to remember that Jesus died for all, that His love knows no limits. Remember His words on the cross: "Father forgive them for they know not what they do." Yes, when I am so angry with God, when it seems He has taken a long vacation and does not hear my prayers, when I feel so lost and alone, all I need to do is think about Jesus and how He suffers for me. Every time I feel abandoned, without direction, lost in the temptation of despair, He suffers too. When I need a reminder of His presence, it may come in the wind, rain, flowers, a newborn's cry, or the peace of a person who is dying, I must embrace Him, and remember He sent His spirit for me to receive, just as He did for the disciples. This is His assurance that my being, and my life abide in His light and love. I found this quote, which I think expresses so much in just a few words. I hope you like it too.

*"We are not human beings having a spiritual experience...
We are spiritual beings
having a human experience"*

Your Sister in Christ, Sandy Gagnon

Or, get together with one or more of your friends and do something special.

Take in a movie - we have Liberty 12/B&B Theaters cards in stock; this generous merchant gives 20% back to St. James for every card sold.

Thank you

My son Brian had been battling cancer over the past year; he died in July. I want to thank you St. James as fellow prayer partners for your concern and prayers for him. I also want to thank Fr. Timothy for his compassionate help. What I have learned over time is one door doesn't close but what God opens another with His wonderful surprises.

I have a special place in my heart for those dealing with cancer, and depression, as well as single parents, as I have been there and our Lord has been with me. Be assured my thoughts and prayers are with you. God Bless - Shirley

Catechists Needed How Are You Using Your Gifts?

We are putting the rosters together for next year's catechist team. We are glad to welcome back most of our catechists from last year, but there are several open spots....maybe one of them has your name on it.

This is one of the most rewarding ministries that our parish has to offer, listening to what our catechists have to say. We try to be respectful of the time we are asking you to commit, and we work towards putting teams together so that schedules can be flexible. The "work" is fun, the children are awesome, and the team is filled with really great people.
